Mayoralty Battle Lines

Campaign Bitterness Due As Race Hits Final Spurt

Thousands of Voters to Attend Rallies In All Sections of City Tonight

Boston's six mayoralty candidates enter their last full week of campaigning tomorrow.

Until recently the campaign was one of the most unusual in the history of the city because of the quiet which prevailed on the surface of things political.

Indications are that in the coming week much bitterness will be in evidence among supporters of the various contenders.

Tonight, the second last Saturday of the battle will witness an outpouring of thousands of voters in all sections of the city to political gatherings.

Curley Points to Tax Rate As Proof of 'Efficiency'

Former Governor James M. Curley cited the mayoralty record of Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield in a speech last night in Symphony Hall before a meeting of the Democratic Ward 5 Committee.

Speaking in Mayor Mansfield's behalf, Curley declared that the Mayor has been responsible for $3.93 of the total tax rate of $30.

"Mayor Curley in his three terms has been responsible for $3.95 and the other three mayors, Peters, Nichols and Mansfield, have been responsible for $13.35, so that comparing average tax rates Mayor Curley has been two and one-half times as efficient as the other three.

"One of the commonly overlooked arguments of mayoralty campaigns is that the extravagance of the former administration has been responsible for the increase of the tax rates of his successors.

"Curley, in his first two terms, was confronted with a $5,000,000 increase and succeeded in reducing the tax rate for his four years above that of Nichols was only $2.90 as compared with Nichols' increase of $4.45.

"Mayor Curley in his three terms has been responsible for $3.95 and the other three mayors, Peters, Nichols and Mansfield, have been responsible for $13.35, so that comparing average tax rates Mayor Curley has been two and one-half times as efficient as the other three.

"A study of the work done in the years [illegible] will show that [illegible] and substantial [illegible] was completed or begun with [illegible] and substantial [illegible] increase of the average tax rate."

"The present district attorney has been guilty [illegible] in [illegible] vicious prosecution during the years he has held his present office.

"As soon as the present campaign got underway, however, we found him prosecuting, not the criminal and lawless element in the country but the character and reputation of Maurice J. Tobin.

"In his public addresses more than 90 per cent of his time is given to attempts to blacken my character.

"Apparently this must be trying to Mr. Foley to suddenly exchange the peaceful atmosphere of his quiet office in Pemberton square for the open field of the mayoralty contest especially when he finds a stubborn young man who insists upon discussing real issues.

"Apparently my three main opponents do not wish to discuss the real issues and to have a definite platform, as I have done, but wish to confine the campaign to a series of large scale bickering," he said.

"Apparently they desire to settle the campaign on personal issues, ignoring matters of public importance confronting our city at the present time.

Helen Hughes Finds Movie World 'Kind and Lovable'

Quest Winner Taken Into Heart of Film Colony

(In the fourth chapter of Helen Hughes' diary of her adventures in Hollywood, the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Talent Quest winner tells of her first real taste of the movies, of the friendly manner in which she is received and of meeting other New Englanders in California.)

By HELEN HUGHES

CHAPTER 4

What a place this Hollywood is.

If anyone had told me four days ago that by now I would be utterly and completely entranced with it I would have doubted them, and yet this now I must admit the truth.

There's something intangible about the entire place that is real and vital, and after that will end, if Hollywood stories take their course.

It is not that I have forsaken Boston and New England. Not at all.

But everything here is so new and informal and comfortable. . . . The people want to be friendly and to help in any way they can.

TASTE OF THE MOVIES

But again, perhaps this is all prompted by the fact that I have had my first taste of movie work.

Just to get into the feeling of what it is all about, Mr. Koenig arranged for me to spend a day at the studio.

Of course I had visited before, but this was while the actual shooting was going on, and everything was quiet and impressive.

But during rehearsals that is another story. Mr. Koenig had explained everything beforehand, so that I knew what was happening, and why, and was not confused. But it is a different thing entirely to watch a dressing room being converted into a [illegible] with every thing complete.

FINDS "REGULAR FOLKS"

It was a little after [illegible] when I arrived at the studio, and was met by Miss Lillian Burns, who is Mr. Koenig's assistant, and Lynne Overman, who is one of the comedians with whom I am to work in the picture. . . .

Of course, I was very much interested in meeting them, and the minute I saw them I knew they were different from other people that I had met. They were natural, and I knew that we would be friends.

Hollywood, as Lynne Overman says, is filled with regular folks. Most other people have the idea that movie people are affected, and [illegible] how absolutely wrong they are.

A FUNNY, GOOD TIME

Miss Burns explained to me that I would have a whole week in which to work, and they wouldn't hear of it when I said I'd be through in two days.

"I'm sure Everybody Sings is going to be the funniest picture ever," she said.

It was simply because I was afraid of wasting time that I finally left and accompanied by Lee Pelissier, who is acting as my chaperon, started to watch the proceedings.

Of course, it is a change to be long in taking one to make just a few steps on this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot.

Everyone knows everyone else, and you see a group together, one group is in a short picture and [illegible] games. And all of the things people do in a studio.

ANOTHER DOWN EASTERNER

Well, Mr. Pelissier and I got into one of the groups.

Finally I was conscious of someone at my elbow.

"Pardon me," he said, "but aren't you Helen Hughes?"

I looked up and into the face of a fine-looking and very handsome chap.

He told me that his wife, Gracie George, asked him to look me up and extend an invitation to me to go there to tea the first free day from the studio.

Miss George, who, you know, was born in Fairhaven, was a few miles away from my birthplace, and so of course I accepted with pleasure when I met the couple.

Her husband is in pictures too, perhaps you saw him in Between Two Women. His name is Leonard Penn.

ONE HAPPY FAMILY

I'm beginning to feel right at home calling in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary.

You know the people here are just like a great big family, and although you haven't met them out of them you seem to know them by sight. Everyone nods and smiles and has such a good time.

This particular noon I lunched with Sophie Tucker.

She was so anxious to hear all about Boston that we had a glorious time.

COCOANUT GROVE THRILL

She gave me a lot of tips that I won't tell now. I'll wait until the day I take my test.

This afternoon I went over to meet my dramatic coach, Lillian Burns.

She is so sweet. Together we went over various material to find something appropriate for the test.

To top off this exciting day I made the second visit to the [illegible] . . . was so big a thrill the first time that I was sure it could never be duplicated, but it was. Mr. Koenig and I talked about [illegible] . . . while we sat in the projection room looking at the rushes of the picture which we had taken on location at Lake Arrowhead.

RIDING IN THE FOG

You have heard about Hollywood fogs in a setting and perhaps you should see nothing [illegible]

It is beautiful!

Everything is quiet and one stands in the midst of the shapes of trees and buildings [illegible] it all to be some fairy land. . . .

Then a soft, watery light that [illegible] swept over everything. I only wish that every night could be just like it. I feel certain that perhaps I would be asked to appear in it that it was [illegible] . . .

Tomorrow in the Boston Sunday Advertiser Helen Hughes tells of her first experience with her dramatic coach and how she is given two books, "Gigolette" and "Bad Boy," by Wilmoth Street, to study. She also gives many interesting sidelights on Hollywood movie life.

HELEN HUGHES WILLIAM KOENIG

The first visit on the lot of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio in Culver City, California, found Helen Hughes, winner of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser-M-G-M talent quest, chatting with William Koenig, studio manager. Step by step Miss Hughes is being introduced to the doings of the M-G-M lot. Keep reading her diary in the Boston Evening American.

And Still The Dream Goes on

Freed in 'Honor Slaying,' Girl Plans New Life

Claims Heavenly Aid Brought Her Acquittal

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 23—Free from the shadow of the electric chair after her trial for the 'honor slaying' of Paul Reeves, father of her unborn child, 20-year-old Margaret Drennan today planned to build a new life.

She was pronounced innocent on the murder charge by a jury of 11 men and one woman, while an overflow crowd in the courtroom put on a riotous demonstration of approval last night.

The jury returned its verdict after deliberating three hours and 23 minutes, ending their ballots in two. Old Judge Adrian Lyon rested his gavel and thrusted many arrests when the spectators heard the words:

"We find the defendant not guilty."

WOMEN SHRIEK

Women shrieked hysterically, standing on the benches, men cheered and even the stout court attendants grinned as they hustled Margaret from the chamber to the sheriff's office where she held a tearful reunion with her mother and father and her sister Agnes.

Happily she repeated over and over again:

"Swell, oh swell. I'm so happy."

The girl was taken to her home [illegible] after hundreds of well-wishers crowded the streets along the route.

SAYS HEAVEN AIDED HER

Once home, she announced that after her baby is born she plans to study law diligently.

"After the baby comes I'll have to do things about him and myself. I intend to become a lawyer. I've been horrified by what I've seen of law this last month, and someone must do something about these horrible things.

[illegible] she said this Mrs. [illegible] and brought [illegible] Reeves to [illegible] Margaret [illegible] to [illegible] sympathy. Margaret [illegible] said:

"The charge to the jury would have sent me straight to the electric chair except for the angels. While the jury was out I told my rosary. I must have told the beads hundreds of times. And my prayers were heard in Heaven."

Sadness and Joy Trials Result

Margaret Drennan, an expectant mother, starts her life anew today. In this happy mood she was photographed just a few minutes after a jury freed her of the murder charge.

3-Day Convention Here Ends With Dinner

With a final plea to its members to fight for academic freedom, the delegates of the Massachusetts Parent-Teacher Association returned to homes today following a three-day convention at Hotel Statler.

In the resolution on academic freedom passed at the closing session the organization went on record as opposing the teaching of any class of controversial questions.

The resolution stated that democracy must depend on the training of the individual and declared that the children of a democracy must be taught to think for themselves.

Highlight of the convention was a talk last night by Dr. Daniel Marsh, president of Boston University, who declared that the school and the parents must help

Big Labor Rivals Ready for War If Talks Fail

Parley Opens Monday Yet Green, Lewis Men 'Arming'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Both the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization are ready to intensify their battle if a peace conference fails.

Representatives of both factions will come together Monday for the first time in some labor circles to discuss a settlement of the feud, it was reported.

THREE-FOLD CAMPAIGN

The A. F. of L. has mapped out a three-fold campaign in the event negotiations fail:

1. A divide-and-conquer policy, by expulsion of some CIO unions from the federation. Appeals to the CIO rank and file to revolt and return to the federation, and invasion of some CIO territory by new A. F. of L. unions.

2. Political action against any government officials, federal, state and local, and any candidates for offices who support or pledge support to the CIO.

3. An intensive membership campaign to make the federation a battle force and war chest larger than the CIO's and thus gain undisputed possession of the title to leadership of the American labor movement.

Her Debut Tonight

ABIGAIL ANN CUTLER, debutante daughter of Mrs. Leslie Brodley Cutler of Charles River, who will be presented this evening by her mother at a dance at The Country Club. Miss Cutler, who is better known as Ann, will be entertained before the dance at the ushers' dinner given by her uncle, Robert Cutler.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Many Social Events Precede And Follow Harvard Game

By BETTY ALDEN

THE FOOTBALL, made from the hide of a lowly pig which managed to survive New Deal machinations, has just about become the symbol and axis of autumn social activities in New England. . . During the year we have quite a few days crowded with weddings, benefits, or other affairs . . . but nothing equals the football week-ends for the number and gayety of parties given entirely for fun . . . without any charitable strings attached.

Today is one of these typically busy football Saturdays . . . Even before the Harvard and Dartmouth gridiron warriors ran out onto the field, the parties began with innumerable buffet luncheons and cocktail parties starting off the festivities . . . and as soon as the game is over most of the younger set will take it over at one of the many tea dances in Cambridge and elsewhere . . . One of the largest of these is Betty Scudder's party at the Charles River Country Club from five to seven . . . Betty is being presented by her parents, the Winthrop Scudders of Brookline . . .

Mixed with the autumn flowers and foliage used for decorations are clusters of red and green balloons and the tea tables have been decorated in keeping with today's football colors . . . Betty has chosen a gown of rose moire trimmed with bands of narrow ermine and is carrying a bouquet of white stephanotis and delphinium . . . Mrs. Scudder's costume is of black velvet and Sally Scudder, who heads the ushers, is wearing bright blue crepe with a pleated skirt . . . In addition to the ushers already listed in a former column, William Evart and Herbert Voss will see to it that all the girls have partners by asking them around to Jackie Marshall's suppe . . . Betty Firmin, Carolyn Day, Barbara Kendall, Ann Bassett, Jean Evart, Jean Carpenter, Betty Prescott and Mary Owen are performing the honors at the tea tables . . .

Mary Eliot

Samuel Eliots to Entertain at Dinner

DINNER TIME was the big thing and most members of the numerous parties attending Ann Cutler's dance at The Country Club . . . One of the largest of these is the party which Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Eliot of Brimmer Hill are giving for their attractive daughter, Mary Amory Eliot . . . Mary, who was presented at Vogues and Shuttles, is one of the new personal members of the Junior League . . . For this evening's festivities she has chosen a gown of white net made with silver sequins running and an inset corsage . . . Among her guests is Miss Mary Alden Kidredge of Beacon Street . . . who is spending the week-end as guest of the Eliots . . .

Mrs. Leslie Bradley Cutler is giving tea-time at The Country Club for her daughter, Abigail Ann Cutler, better known as Ann . . . while Robert Cutler, Ann's uncle will be host at the ushers' dinner . . . Ann is a personal member of the Junior League as are the members of the debutante party who will dine with the ushers . . . And a presentation Ann is white satin and net trimmed with gold sequins . . . Mrs. Cutler is carrying out the gold and white color scheme in her bouquet of orchids . . .

The debutante's three brothers, Robert B. Cutler, W. and Leslie Cutler, Jr., are ushers, and Barrington A. Kistler is escort for the evening . . . Their assistants include George C. Cutler, Jr., John W. Farley, Jr., Philip Cutler and Joseph Bradlee, all cousins of the debutante; John Symonds, Jr., Donald C. Warson, Jr., Vincent B. Bassett, A. Boynton Cutler, Jr., William Sayles, Renaud Russell, Thomas H. Choate, J. Paul Austin and several others . . .

Bayles-Brown Ceremony

MISS RACHEL BROWN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Brown of White Hill, Topsfield, is becoming the bride this afternoon of Dr. Theodore Bevier Bayles, at a simple wedding in King's Chapel of which the bride's grandfather, Reverend Howard N. Brown, was rector for many years . . . Miss Brown, whose late mother was the former Rachel C. Newberry of Taunton, is a graduate of the Winsor School and made her debut in 1928 . . . Dr. Bayles is the son of Reverend and Mrs. Theodore F. Bayles of New Brunswick, N. J. He graduated from Rutgers College in 1932 from Harvard Medical School in 1936, and is now an interne at the Bellevue Hospital in New York . . .

The ceremony is being performed by the bridegroom's father, assisted by Reverend Palfrey Perkins . . . Deborah Brown is serving as maid of honor for her sister and the bridesmaids are Letitia Brown, Frances Broughton, Susan Page and Elizabeth Fritz, all wearing gowns of green velvet with ensembles of ostrich feathers and short brown veils . . . The bride's gown is of ivory satin, made very simply, with a tulle veil and an old fashioned corsage of gardenias . . .

After November 1 Dr. Bayles and his bride will be at home in New York . . .

Leaders to Attend Museum Opening

MRS. J. GARDNER BRADLEY, Mrs. George Sabonsrail West, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams and Mrs. George Gardner Peabody, Jr., will be in the receiving line at the private opening of the New England Museum of Natural History, which will take place on Thursday evening, November 4 at 8:30 . . . Invitations to this notable affair have been issued to prominent society folk by the officers of and trustees of the Boston Society of Natural History . . . Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, director of the American Museum of Natural History, will describe his explorations in the Gobi desert . . . and after the reception and speech refreshments will be served . . .

• • •

Lucy Pope and Rosamond Hamlin, provisional members of the Junior League, have already volunteered to add a helping hand in various departments of the League . . . They have both been appointed assistant librarians of the League's Glee Club and will be on hand next Tuesday afternoon for the tea which will celebrate the beginning of the Glee Club's tenth season . . . Mrs. Emily Walle Harris, assisted by Marjory Knowles, will direct the music for the coming season . . . New officers of the Glee Club are Mrs. Lothrop Dana, chairman; Mrs. William King, secretary; Mrs. J. Timothy Walker, Jr., costumes; Mrs. Lewis Bell, publicity; Anne Means, librarian.

Self-Made Girl -:- By Hazel Livingstone

CHAPTER 36

Linda would be with Ned, probably. Ned, who always looked like a million dollars. They'd sail by, and then she'd turn and put out both hands and cry: "Glenn—and Ruth. What a surprise!"

And she'd introduce Ned, who'd be a little possessive, a little anxious to be rid of them, and afterwards Glenn would say to Ruth: "That Hilliard fellow seems to be in love with Linda—"

And then he'd remember when he used to be in love with her, and he'd look at Ruth—and wonder what the dickens he ever married her for, and—

After one of these day dreams Linda usually had a headache and went to work next day with swollen eyelids and a pinkish nose. But on this particular October night the image didn't end there. It went on. It went on to her marriage with Ned.

Ned had been more than half in love with her for near a year. She was as far as he knew, at least one of his own kind. No one else in the office was married. No one would think it an unusual matter.

They'd go to Atlantic City on their honeymoon. Miss Ross would probably resent that. Linda would be delighted. Miss Ross would probably resent that. Linda would be delighted.

This time Linda didn't wait to see. She went. The wedding, without doubt, was Glenn Maclaine.

She sat up very straight in her chair, her eyes closed, and said her name aloud to herself.

It was going again, and Linda was ready. Only this time it was Ned Carey. Ned Carey, since she started out on her own, a year and a half since she came west.

Handle the months since she made up her mind to make Ned marry her, and handle them as good as done. He hadn't actually asked her yet, but he would, in a few days. She could see it in his eye.

A FAITHFUL SUITOR

Ned reached the dependent stage. Nothing was worth while unless there was a girl around, and she had to read, or write, or listen to it before he could relax. Except himself.

Here, perhaps, was the fatal flaw in Ned's self-sufficient character. He was a man who needed a girl to admire him. Linda was that girl. Some day, perhaps, Ned would be ready for marriage, and when he was, Linda would be there, pliant, arms around

BROTHER LOWRIE

"I hope you don't mind our coming in this way. We explained to the doorman, and finally they let us in—"

Della, Linda said. Her face, you stupid, you know Della. Della, you remember Ned Carey, Miss Ross's assistant—

Hello kid, how are you? Surprised?

Well, that's modest. I haven't believe it. I—Wait a minute—I'm out of breath.

Linda, you remember Ned Carey, Miss Ross's assistant—

I let a couple with a little boy into your apartment, Miss Perry, but I've been worried about it, though they said they were your brother and sister-in-law, and they had letters from you to prove it. I meant to do the right thing, I hope—

"It was all right," Linda said, and she smiled at Della.

"Where's Sonny?" she asked.

Upstairs, Della said. "Gee, you do remember your folks! Maybe we're not so unnecessary after all. See if the Big Shot's awake. Because I'm just bum down on the bed, he was all in.

Linda ran a long track across the room, and don't let me interrupt, Della. I'll come that far with my mother's—

Then she was with the children, and Della was right. Sonny was all in, sprawled face down on the bed, and Linda's mother was sitting in a chair, looking at him.

"Look up at your Aunt Linda. Come to your dad's feller," Laurie cried.

"No, he wants to stay with his mama," Della said.

Oh, he's too tired now. Put him back on the bed, Della dear. And now tell me everything. Where are you bound for, and what are your plans, and how's everybody—and EVERYTHING.

Paris Original

LACE FASHIONS have reached a new high this season. They're no longer confined to sheer, trailing tunics . . . there are many new types for all-day wear that match in practically any other fabric. Tailored to a nicety, here is a wool lace original by Schiaparelli that is part of a new feature fashion show presented by a Boston shop. It's a dusky rich shade of purple such as has come in. The details of the simple tailored line are emphasized at the shoulders and bodice by means of stitched darts running vertically. The little ruffled stand-up collar is very flattering.—Annie Brink.

Count Your Tricks

BY JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

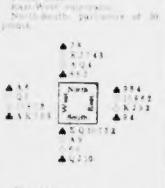
A defender's primary duty is to count up the tricks needed to defeat the contract and to keep that number constantly in mind.

At [illegible] would do [illegible] to avoid the sinking [illegible] summer of tricks allowed [illegible] number of plays [illegible] skid.

If you only were to defeat the contract, [illegible] getting a partial credit or counting [illegible] of nearly the total allowed by the [illegible]

South deals. East-West vulnerable. South opens the bidding with one spade. The auction proceeds:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the king of clubs and East began a signal with the Queen. West played low for his side. West did not blindly obey the signal and give his partner a club ruff. Instead he counted up the number of tricks that were needed to defeat the contract and found that only one was needed.

With four tricks needed he knew that he must have high cards and ruff together with Ace of diamonds. Since he himself could not possibly have the ace of spades it was necessary for his partner to hold either the ace of hearts or king of diamonds.

A NECESSARY PLAY

The bidding made it almost certain that South had the Ace of hearts. West therefore decided that the contract could be defeated if his partner held the king of diamonds. In that case a shift to diamonds at the second trick was imperative.

Following his analysis West led the deuce of diamonds and won the trick. He then led a low heart. East would win and return his club. His partner would then give him a club ruff, and the Ace of spades would furnish the setting trick.

If South refused the finesse, West would take his Ace of trumps and give his partner the club ruff. Thereupon East would be in a position to cash the King of diamonds for the setting trick.

Had West continued with the club instead of shifting to diamonds East would have ruffed the third round of clubs but would not then have been able to attack North's Ace of diamonds. South could easily knock out the Ace of trumps and discard his losing diamond on Smitha Jack of spades.

Your Figure, Madame!

MIDDLE-AGED FIGURE - NOT NECESSARY

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WOMEN used to be old at thirty. Now they are young at forty because they are on guard against the middle-age figure.

The difference between the youthful and the matronly figure is largely a matter of suppleness and well-toned muscles.

Nowhere is muscular control more necessary than in the middle of the figure—the waistline and abdomen.

From the standpoint of health as well as the figure the muscles of the abdomen are among the most important in the body. Well toned and strong they give proper support to the internal organs and, furthermore, they help the muscles of the back and chest to do their proper work.

In exercising, forming the abdominal girdle are important. Any action in some extent is all right, but gymnastics such as quick, short movements and walking are best.

Go for these activities and you will keep your figure looking fashionable, as the average woman of 40 is not. Sit and loaf and you'll soon be developing a corpulence that means ugliness and the loss of youthful figure.

• • •

Many of the calisthenics which are supposed to strengthen the abdominal muscles are in reality face exercises.

Keep in mind that the abdominal muscles are attached to the ribs and that they assist in expiration. Any exercise which raises the ribs toward the chest is a waist reducing exercise.

• • •

On the other hand there are a number of which the point of attachment is the pelvis. Any of the abdominal muscles which are most offensive of these exercises is similar to the fan dance. You can feel a few muscles, but the complement does not show. Crossing exercises and exercises which bring the abdominal muscles into action [illegible] contraction.

POSITION—Down on hands and knees. Keep back straight.

MOVEMENT—Work like a cat stretching itself. Move one hand forward and at the same time the hand remains stationary and the movement is reversed. Each time straightening in the movement.

Add to these exercises those contained in the leaflet, "Abdominal Exercises to Discipline a Protruding Tummy," for which you may send. Enclose a stamped, addressed envelope when writing for this material, and address your request to Miss Kain, in care of this paper.

Prime of Life Not Set by One's Age

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

A FREQUENT question is, "I wonder how old he is?" A common response is, "He is in the prime of life."

What is the prime of life? Often it is stated that old age begins when the prime of life is passed.

Then there is a gradual decrease in strength and activity. But there is no clear-cut definition of when the prime of life is actually reached.

The period which extends from maturity onward may be regarded as the period of the "prime of life." The individual has reached the stage of greatest mental and physical ability. Yet just around the corner is the specter of old age.

AGE NO MATTER

Undoubtedly you have met some persons of 50 who are physically and mentally old, others who are active, both in mind and body at a much later age.

Many of the chronic disorders of middle age can be avoided by early attention to certain defects. Every effort must be made to adjust yourself to physical ability. Failure to do this gives watchful old age a chance to get the upper hand, then the period of the prime of life is unnecessarily shortened.

Men Afraid of Her, Says Much-Wed Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A young woman, who has been twice married and twice divorced, writes to tell me that men seem to be afraid of her.

Both of her husbands, she confides, were absolutely undesirable. They drank, gambled and spent their money on other women.

Why should she have had to put up with them?

Men who brag about being modern, she says, seem to be afraid of her as a wife, though they appear eager to make dates.

But she does not want the gay dash, their flirtations imply. Domestic in her tastes she would like to have a real home, which she thinks is not unnatural for a woman of her age, 34.

Quoting from my letter:

"Just as soon as some man discovers I've been twice divorced he grins as if he'd drawn a winning ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes.

"He proceeds to make violent love to me, and when he discovers I don't want that kind of love-making he acts as if I were not playing the game squarely.

"As if a man of this type would know what being square meant!"

Spanish Parley Develops New Difficulties

Deadlock Over Method Of How Alien Troops Shall Be Moved

(By the Associated Press)

The [illegible] again negotiations to restore non-intervention in warring Spain developed fresh difficulties today, leaving only a remote possibility of an early agreement.

A weekend recess proposed by Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, stayed off for the moment at least a complete collapse of the conference. The committee is now seeking a solution at its next meeting for Tuesday.

The status of affairs was left yesterday's refusal of the Fascist bloc—Italy, Germany and Portugal—to agree on principles governing foreign soldiers fighting in the Spanish conflict.

Under a plan before the sub-committee of the non-intervention committee, only the nationals of countries of foreign troops or a certain percentage of them would be withdrawn.

FASCISTS OBJECT

This proposal will probably give the Loyalists the power to bring in fighting equipment for their government.

Another obstacle to Soviet Russia's opposition to granting belligerent rights to the warring Spanish factions is that foreign military aids have not withdrawn.

While the diplomatic tension in the Franco-Spanish area has relaxed, there is no indication that the battle fronts.

Reports received at Hendaye on the Franco-Spanish border indicate the Nationalist government forces are massing for a new drive on Madrid. Fighting is reported to be raging on the Guadalajara front, 30 miles northeast of Madrid.

New Rail Rate Rise Intimated

ICC Leaves Way Open For Further Increase Up to $20,000,000

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The action of the ICC in granting almost the entire rate increase asked by the railroads is important, of course, but many observers are inclined to the belief that the commission intimated that additional tariffs adding another $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 to the $37,000,000 granted is the real meat of the announcement.

In the words of the Commission the record amply justifies the conclusion that in the aggregate the railroads are earning very materially less than a reasonable return on the fair value of their properties—the increase will be subject to review in connection with any comprehensive consideration of the rate structure. In view of the fact that the great mass of these materials the commission has before it does not seem to be available for the next 60 days, we may assume that most reasonably fair conclusions quite obviously are not indicated at present. Rather, the greater part of the year is contemplated. And the statistical attitude disclosed promises a balance between cost increases and income.

* * *

Some railroads will find that the excess of rate increase over recent wage increases will enable them to have a surplus for purchase of equipment or to set one side against higher taxes and material costs. For others, however, there is little gain. The higher rates simply supplying a part of money required for such purposes. Consequently prospective buyers of shares in the group want to make a careful study of the situation before committing themselves. In the case of New York Central for instance, it is estimated that the road will gain some $4,500,000 in revenue, but the two wage increases cost $11,424,444.

* * *

On the other hand the increase rate will no doubt help Norfolk & Western and Virginian, which have a heavy coal tonnage, and which, it has not been proposed to reduce, so many people will be glad to see granted since August was the time to take advantage of the old rates. Estimates of the effect of the ICC decision a number of years ago, when it granted 15 per cent increase, indicated that the effect of the rise in loadings to supply leverage.

* * *

The market brushed the rail news one side despite the better action of the group late yesterday and went about its business of experiencing a secondary setback. And heartishness spread with the speed of wildfire as boardrooms saw a resumption of the decline along the same lines witnessed early this week. We do not think this is the case. A thorough cleaning out took place on the previous occasion and it is doubtful a technical situation as weak as that previously existed built up during the brief upturn of midweek. We much prefer the calm view that profit taking on purchases made during the weak spell and unloading of stale accounts that just missed a margin call is responsible for the reaction.

* * *

The big question is whether or not the levels noted here yesterday will hold against the selling. Bears are quick to draw bearish conclusions on this. Rather it is suggested they remind themselves a new recovery move must be built up in quiet, cooperative fashion and there will be plenty of time to toss out technical theories.

A Few Moments of Your Spare Time May Brighten the Rest of Your LIFE

THE AMERICAN'S EASY RULES IN A "NUTSHELL"

★ The Editors of the Boston Evening American have written and illustrated 90 short stories that deal with HUMAN PROBLEMS.

★ One story will appear daily for 15 weeks. Each week six will appear. Each six represents a Set. There will be 15 Sets.

★ Each story has been written and illustrated so that you may with skill and judgment be able to find the correct conclusion.

★ Each story will have clues in the text or illustration that will point to the one correct conclusion. (Stories are taken from fiction, fable, history and the pages of this paper.)

★ The contest began October 4th 1937 and ends January 22nd 1938.

★ Anyone in New England may enter except employees of Hearst Newspapers and members of their families.

★ The One Hundred contestants who have most successfully selected the correct conclusions, thereby obtaining the highest grade, will be awarded in the order of their gradings a total of $20,000.00 in Cash. The first award will be $15,000.00 with 99 consolation awards listed on this page.

★ NEATNESS is not a factor in the judging of the answers.

★ Five judges have been appointed. They will have the original sources from which each story was taken as proof of the ONE correct solution.

★ In case of tie only the tied contestants will submit an original problem in less than 200 words. This tie-breaking problem will be judged on its ORIGINALITY OF THOUGHT and its Human Quality. Neatness or grammatical construction does not count.

★ Every contestant will have an individual file. They will receive an acknowledgment card of their entry with their contest number.

★ The SETS-OF-SIX are to be sent in EACH WEEK as a Unit.

★ TEN CENTS must be sent with EACH SET-OF-SIX. This is required to be eligible for a prize. The contestant will receive in return an illustrated booklet containing 15 original Human Problems. The booklet will be mailed at the conclusion of the contest to the contestants who have completed the ninety problems.

★ The judges will have final decision, and by entering you agree to accept their decisions as final.

★ The Boston American will publish the correct conclusions following the awarding of the prizes and in case the contestants submit tie-breaking original problems, these will be published in the new department of the Boston American, to be called the HUMAN FORUM.

AUSTEN LAKE

Strange Case of the N. Y. State People Vs. Laverne Moore

THERE IS AN ILLUMINATING SLICE OF Americana being cut at Elizabethtown, N. Y., where a young man named Laverne Moore, alias John Montague, is being tried for sticking up a speakeasy in the prohibition era. Ordinarily this would be considered unfinished business left over from the Great National Hypocrisy, were it not that Laverne Moore is no ordinary refugee. He has acquired wide fame as a golfer, athlete and possesses much charm, funds and friends.

AUSTEN LAKE

The State charges that Laverne Moore was one of a group of harrum-scarrum Syracuse youths who transported stimulants over the back roads during prohibition, dropping their loads by pre-arrangement with the thirst-hideaways which spotted the country. One night in September of 1930, the state avers, Laverne Moore and his playmates made a business call on a Japanese rum retailer who had contracted for, and received, certain goods but was in arrears of payment. The Jap's name was Kin Hana, a weasel-type, who welshed on the price and defied the gang to sue.

So a party of seven men outside Laverne Moore was one company to [illegible] the direct method of picking a fight in the face of [illegible] and going for the contents of a [illegible]. They completed the operation in due course but in their impetuous getaway got stranded in a roadside culvert. This was the life of one of the [illegible]. The two were tagged, except for one which the State avers was Laverne Moore.

Speakeasy Life in the North Country

SO TODAY LAVERNE MOORE, prosperous, fleshy and appealing to the popular imagination after eight years of life among the Hollywood film colonists and reputed to be the world's greatest golfer, is being tried by an upper New York State jury. One of the collection gang, named Roger Norton, has pointed him out as having attended the stickup party. And things look pretty bad for Laverne Moore. He may be filed away for security in one of the graystone mansions along the Hudson.

[illegible]

I have made some firm and observations of this condition during the years when Gene Tunney, Primo Carnera, Max Baer and other big athletes were training in upper and middle New York State and the correspondents whiled away their evenings with extra-curricular activities in the Cellar A. C.'s and Woodchuck Holes which dotted the region.

The law and the blind tigers played a very jolly game. From time to time the law in the shape of State troopers in opera regalia and purple stripings would storm the exclusive premises of the Cellar A. C.'s and the Woodchuck Holes. But the proprietors always seemed to anticipate these forays and, with a great bustle and whoop everyone, including the customers, would help to carry the merchandise outside to some grassy repository or rocky cave.

The troopers were very considerate. They doused their intrusive [illegible] and [illegible] in the [illegible] truck, [illegible] and got back [illegible]. Then they would tear up and conduct a search with grim and merciless fury. They would stamp around the taverns, inspecting the [illegible] and glowering [illegible] on the tables, and peering [illegible] in the [illegible] and [illegible] repovingly. "You haven't been a naughty boy tonight, Mike."

These proprietors, who were mostly transformed hay-shakers, appleknockers and sodbusters—fine characters in many respects, though it grieves me to state, addicted to certain broad deceptions. Always they would look the troopers in their glittering eyes and say, "No," very loud and convincingly.

[illegible] had roared away, the members of the Cellar A. C. would [illegible] the night with more hustle and whoopings and the usual amenities of the evening would resume. As I say, the troopers never made any pinches or appropriated any stocks, chiefly because of the all-pervading genius of the proprietors. Though I hesitate to credit the calumnious gossip that the troopers always passed on their way to a raid to telephone the host, because such behavior does not seem to be harmonious with the best ideas of law and order.

They Observe a Golden Rule

THIS IS THE COUNTRY WHERE ELIZABETHTOWN is situated and I doubt if there is a native in the whole region who has not slipped a lip over illicit goods or trafficked in them at some period of prohibition. And I will warrant that, when a verdict is being polled in the jury room, many a talisman will secretly examine his conscience and vote on Laverne Moore as he would like to have Laverne Moore vote on him under what he can readily imagine as similar conditions.

Indeed it was only [illegible] years ago that Legs Diamond, a notorious and sinister character who operated in Northern New York was acquitted by a jury of these people despite some very damning evidence. The jury contained a quorum of old disseminators of hooten and they voted the low-grade fellow free.

Of course, there is one item which will not out snug with the Elizabethtown jurors. The collecting party, of which the state maintains Laverne Moore was one, used [illegible] of hardware very much abhorred by the natives. This was the patio which the state says was poured in the Jap's noodle at the instant of collection. That might prejudice the jury with whom pistols are very unpopular, into giving Laverne Moore a short term in college.

While the defense argues that the state cannot prove that Laverne Moore was present, at most but the Laverne Moore under indictment might have been another Lauretta Moore. And the jury of north country Yorkers, which are very individual folk, will probably choose to believe the defense attorneys in preference to those of the State and let the Laverne Moore go back to his golfing.

BATTLE OF MUSIC

The long-awaited battle of music between the Dartmouth and Harvard bands, two of the best in the East, will start today at the Stadium when the Big Green's contingent of musicians enter the Allston oval at 1:30 p. m. for pre-game practice.

The Harvard band, complete with glockenspiels and huge bass drum, will appear later

Ready for the big test. Captain Merrill Davis, brilliant Dartmouth end, is set for the Green's annual struggle with Harvard, which takes place at the Stadium this afternoon. Dartmouth is undefeated and untied and is a slight favorite today.

Detroit Favored To Turn Back Eagles

But Kiley Believes Dobie's Boys Will Pull Surprise

In our book these Dobie Eagles will some look a far better team for their future to punch out touchdowns against Temple and, with Della Giotoff, their passing ace, returned to good physical standing, should do a lot of damage overhead for a change.

So regardless of the odds we like Boston College to beat those Titans, the admitted Boston power forcing a rival line to bend, the while its own mighty frontier

B. U.-RESERVE TOSS UP

Teams Enter Game Undefeated

By MURRAY KRAMER

The Clash [illegible] Terriers tangle over at Fenway Park this afternoon at 2 p. m.

Both teams [illegible] with records unmatched for the current season. Western Reserve has won four straight for the year and has [illegible] twenty-seven games without a defeat.

The Terriers have run up three victories this season and have a slight carryover to give them seven without a loss.

Just what today's outcome will be is problematical.

Both teams play in different leagues, and there is little chance for comparison. The attitude both coaches are taking is one of whole some respect for each other's club.

The teams shape up quite evenly as far as weight and experience go. Boston University has rolled up more yardage on its running attack than the cats, but Western Reserve has completed 50 per cent of its passes.

Neither club has been fully tested and neither has shown more than a dozen basic plays all season.

Today, however, both are going to open up. Western Reserve is just beginning to receive credit nationally for its remarkable streak, and a win today will mean much in their bid for Eastern recognition.

The Terriers also have much at stake. After years of football famine they are just beginning to [illegible] sound real attention. Last year set them on the right road and a victory over Big Ten opposition will do much to help their cause.

Coach Pat Hanlon has brought his boys along at just the right tempo for today's clash. He let them take the first three games without attempting to key them up, and now has a starting eleven that is just rarin' for its first major foe.

Hanley's boys will pay particular attention to Frank Kelker of Reserve, who looked very impressive working out at Fenway Park.

This big end can do everything. He does a great deal of the carrying from end around plays and often dimps into a backfield position for a [illegible] spell. In addition he is a great pass receiver.

Kelker will be closely watched all afternoon for the Terrier mentors feel that this great end is the spearhead in the visitors' attack and that the only way to stop the Cats is to bottle him.

Western Reserve feels the same way about Lou Riaszynski, who has been running wild all fall. They will pay marked attention to New England's leading scorer, for Lou has no intention of giving up his high National ranking.

Tufts Underdog

The Williams gridmen, undefeated by any college in their class, are favored to win over Tufts at Tufts Oval, Medford, this afternoon in the tenth game of their series.

The Purple has been triumphant in seven of these nine starts, winning last year's game, 6-0.

Williams will have its full strength, while the Jumbos will have a substitute at right guard, Jack Dixon replacing the injured 190-pound Jerry Edwards.

Indications point to Coach Lew Manly using two full teams in this melee regardless of the score, for he will need as much experienced reserve material as possible in the tilt with Brown at Providence next week.

Captain Lew Zimman is again in first class shape, his charley-horse having eased up, but Al Pearson, ace end, who has been training to pull in long forward passes, has the same ailment in his leg, a disability which may hamper him considerably throughout the game.

Thus far the Jumbos have had a successful season, winning over both Bates and Colby, but dropping the Rhode Island game by one touchdown. This is a far better record than anticipated before the start of the season.

Temple Upsets Carnegie, 7-0

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23 (INS)—Temple University scored some what of an upset when it defeated Carnegie Tech, 7-0, under the Temple Stadium floodlights.

The lone score came early in the first period when after two scoring chances Chris Pappas Temple's flashy back, went over for the touchdown and kicked the extra point.

Rain started to fall shortly after the game started making the field a quagmire, and both teams resorted to a punting duel thereafter.

Larry Kelley Will Flash Brilliantly | Gives Shamrocks Needed Color

By JACK CONWAY

MR. BOSTON

LARRY KELLEY'S presence in the lineup of the Shamrocks against Pittsburgh at Fenway Park tomorrow will give professional football one of its finest opportunities to make good in Boston.

The Shamrcks until now have been an average professional football team without a great personality. They have lacked color and as a result have not done very well at the gate.

The brilliant Kelley gives George Kennally's club the splash of color it needed. The great Larry will play right end in tomorrow's game, and you may expect to see him go dashing down the field and flying to the spot for which a long forward pass is headed.

Forward passing is one of the most important parts of modern football. A good receiver is as necessary as a good passer.

Modern football crowds get bored watching two elevens play the old army game where a premium is placed on short gains through the line. I find the fans like to be electrified by long passes, and by trick plays which send a fleet back skirting around one of the ends for substantial gains.

The Green Bay Packers was the first professional team to put on a top exhibition of running in this city. When they first showed here against the Bostonians at the Braves Field football fans for the first time saw a team composed of the best college teams had ever reached that profession in passing that had been attained by the team from Green Bay.

By GEORGE HOLLAND

If I were a member of the Boat Commission I would be very careful how I spoke about the waters of parking meters for the city. From a letter to the correspondence column of the Herald I learn that a number of persons have been fined for overparking their cars on Boston streets. I would be willing to bet that most of the persons who have been fined have been those who have put the money in the meters and simply forgotten about it.

GOGGLY GAGS

Florence Linden, headless lead in the local coffin Room Series, tried a vegetarian lunch at a downtown restaurant the other day when a man who stepped out of the place a shiller approached and whined the price of a meal, stating he was a vegetarian. Florence handed him a buck saying: "Any vegetarian with as much soul blood deserves a dollar . . . no longer do the nighter-owners call the late spots such names as drive-ins, etc. the best term for a gin mill is a sink."

A Necessary Reform

REORGANIZATION of the Executive branch of the Federal Government is one of the four major reforms for which President Roosevelt has called the special session of Congress.

The project is by no means a new one.

In previous administrations, it has been frequently discussed, with nothing accomplished.

Mr. Roosevelt wanted SOMETHING DONE about it, and he submitted it to the regular session of the present Congress.

There it remained as unfinished business at adjournment, and hence will become current business of the special session.

A GREAT many people, unfamiliar with the conditions existing at Washington, fail to appreciate why the President is so insistent in his desire for departmental reorganization.

If these citizens were acquainted with the perfunctory, lackadaisical, dilatory and inefficient manner in which much of the Government's executive business is conducted, they would see that the President's position is wholly justified.

The Interstate Commerce Commission furnishes an immediate example.

Some railroad freight-rate cases have been pending, undecided, before that commission for a year.

During this period, the railroads concerned have been kept in uncertainty.

This long doubt as to future freight revenue necessarily had adverse effects upon the railroads—the uncertainty extends to earnings or losses, to operating efficiency, to wage adjustments, to repairs and improvements, to the "financial position" of the lines, and to the values of their securities in the hands of the public.

It is always the tendency of bureaucracy to become cumbersome and incompetent, and the Executive departments of the Federal Government have become a vast labyrinth of unwieldy and complicated bureaucracy.

As Mr. Roosevelt said in his Fireside Chat on October 12th:

"For many years we have all known that the executive and administrative departments of the government at Washington are a higgledy-piggledy patchwork of duplicate responsibilities and overlapping powers."

THERE was enough sincere opposition in the regular session of Congress to prevent enactment of the Administration plan, based on the report of the Brownlow Committee.

This opposition held that the Brownlow plan would have transferred congressional functions to the Executive, with extreme centralization of power. That is the trouble with most of the President's plans.

However, questions as to METHODS do not lessen the validity of the President's OBJECTIVE.

Congress itself has a committee, headed by Senator Byrd, of Virginia, at work on the problem of reorganization, and should be able to evolve a proper solution.

The OBJECTIVE—simplification of government—will have to be attained if the functions of government are to be capably exercised, and if the cost of government is to be reduced and controlled.

The Communists Cry "Help!"

THE special legislative committee investigating subversive organizations demands that the Communist Party reveal the names of its Massachusetts members.

The committee insists that the Communists make public the information that the Democrats and Republicans have always made public. The law requires that lists of persons eligible to vote in a primary election be available to all who desire to see them.

The committee asks no more than it would be expected to ask any political organization.

But what do the Communists do? One after another, their leaders shout "NO." And, in a final, desperate attempt to conceal their membership, they threaten to appeal to the LaFollette Civil Liberties Commission to protect them and to investigate the committee.

Such an attitude is thoroughly un-American. The whole theory of government in this country cries out against secrecy. The records of all bodies, from the Supreme Court down through Congress to the minutes of the smallest city council, have always been public property.

America, unlike the monarchies, dictatorships and tyrannies of Europe, has functioned IN THE OPEN. Darkness has no place in a democracy where the people are the rulers.

Consequently, i, the Communists refuse to do what other parties do, they should forfeit their place on the ballot. They claim they oppose "special privileges." They have no right to seek them.

Launder All Voting Lists

CAMBRIDGE, borrowing a leaf from Boston's book, reports fraudulent names on its voting lists.

Chairman of the Election Commission Daniel P. Leahy tells us that out of the first 500 listed voters checked by police, 55—exactly 10 per cent—were found to be "phantoms" and ghosts."

He adds that some of the names were those of persons living in communities contiguous to Cambridge and in one case, a restaurant was listed as a voter's residence.

This revelation is not unexpected. We shall probably hear similar complaints from many cities, as well as from towns. Political methods do not vary much. The desire of politicians to run elections to suit themselves is by no means peculiar to Boston.

As we have often said, what Massachusetts needs is a statewide purge of the voting lists. We must clean-house, from Boston to the Berkshires.

He Scores; So May We

In the Life Game, Without Bands, Coonskin Coats, Crowded Stadiums and Cheer Leaders, We Are Players Fighting for Accomplishment.

THE young man in the picture has just crossed the goal line and made a touchdown.

We should read about him in the papers tomorrow.

We should read about him in the schools and college games played today.

This young man and those who are score as small can increase their fear themselves from the men of obstacles that would daunt them. KEEP GOING and win.

Their nerves may be screaming to the breaking point, their bodies taxed to exhaustion, their muscles weakened, but THEY KEEP GOING.

That is what we call them heroes.

So it is in life—a game calling harder and far more important than school or college football.

In the life game, without bands, coonskin coats, crowded stadiums and cheer leaders, we are players fighting for accomplishment.

Men and nations may down us, defeat us, but like the courageous young man in the picture, we bear ourselves away and KEEP GOING.

We may not always be able to break the line and make among men. We may find ourselves not in average mediocrity. Yet, no matter, we shall have the satisfaction of the knowledge that we did KEEP GOING, that we did do our best.

Our daily lives the football players have to show will power, not to fall back because others have surpassed us in struggle on to the last minute, even though we know that we cannot achieve distinction.

To [illegible] all that we have, whether it be less or more than the players with or against us either, in playing the game of life in the way true and worthwhile way.

Life, as the wise philosophers wisely said, is what we make it. Without effort—constant, unceasing effort—life is but a passing dream.

As we eat in a material food, we begin with hope, and the great majority succeed and thrive, go ahead, make their way. Some fail, but they KEEP GOING.

That is our life, universal success, and for it we have only ourselves to praise.

If we have not yet played this game this month of this day, there are OTHER plays to be made and won in our business and trade and life that are NOW.

The game of life starts every morning when we arise from our beds and starts until we return to them to sleep again.

We ought to remember, all of us, that it is not beginning but the FINISH that matters.

Life, like football, does not start on the goal line. Hard work, constant effort and a determination to KEEP GOING are the combination that puts men on goal lines.

Let us resolve NOW to end this day well. Let us make be our motto NOW to do our best.

Yesterday we shall never see again. It is gone. There is neither cause nor excuse for worrying about it. What is done is done. Time never moves backwards.

Tomorrow is of vastly more importance. There may never be a tomorrow. For some who read this editorial that is sure. Time moves ahead, but now or never what certainly nobody knows.

WE HAVE TODAY. We have only today. Today is ours. Yours to use or ours to neglect. Time moves with us.

Our cares are all TODAY, our joys are all TODAY. And a one little word, our life, what is it but TODAY?

Let us, you, this writer and everybody whom these words reach, get into the football game of life NOW and play it to the very best of our individual abilities.

It is what we do TODAY that counts. No other time has any existence. The touchdown that scores is the PRESENT HOUR.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

"The civilized races seem to be losing the courage to live."

Edwin C. Hill

"In almost every country," said Dr. Carrel, "the reproduction of the more gifted individuals is decreasing."

To this great thinker this is of ominous significance, possibly heralding the crumbling of our civilization.

He sees nervous frailty in business executives, moral cowardice in statesmen, and in religion who seem to see no menace dangerous for the future of organization than yellow fever, to please concern no disease which attacks the flesh.

Only a little while ago Dr. Carrel warned us that the strain usually of modern life is breaking down human resistance to fatigue, to sorrows and to disease.

CHIEF AIM DEFEATED

The delicate nervous system is daily abused and assaulted by ten thousand devils that trap and wrench in the roaring cavalcade of what we call modern progress.

Dr. Carrel believes that the march of science has left the human being by the wayside and that the conquest of material wealth has defeated the greatest aim of all, to achieve a more abundant life both spiritually and physically.

The observations and philosophy of the great scientist of Rockefeller Institute are amazingly similar to the Pythagoras.

The Greek sage knew that the earth moved around the sun but he kept it a secret, telling only a few of his friends and pledging them not to say anything about it.
